

The Real Economy of Wanamaker Prices

We proceeded to make January busy, by diverting to that month such large lots of merchandise as we could induce manufacturers to make for us during slack times of the year—at less than regular rates.

The plan prospered, because we sold bright new goods at prices greatly below the usual.

Of course, January sales are held everywhere now—there are factories that exist just to supply goods for them; as there are shops where antiques of any required antiquity are made at a day's notice.

Our January Sales Are of Broadened Scope

The store is as odd as ever—it does not depend on the "things made to sell" and which | pay more next year, even for your bargains; but not all of the advance, for our January orders business; but it plans ahead, and now the white month sees here sales of many sorts of goods- to even the most prosperous mills.

In the face of present market conditions, this month's prices are phenomenally low-as low as last January's as a rule.

During the month several stocks will be re-adjusted and, of course, things will be sold at a loss. But the back-bone of the January selling at Wanamaker's is its stock of

As we write, certain of our buyers are in Europe planning for goods to come here for fresh new goods. Today, considerably above a million dollars' worth of white things are

Muslin Underwear

As nearly as we can count present receipts and estimate the quantities to come during the next two weeks to complete our orders, we have over a million garments. Their charm is in their daintiness, good taste, fair making, fullness of size, and the sanitary conditions under which we demand that the work shall be done.

The one reason why you should buy at least a half year's supply right now, is that you save considerable. Judge by the cambric corset covers at 8c-carefully finished, even to the real pearl buttons; judge by any garment that your trained eye will let you analyze. Plainer things are yours at about the cost of materials—often less. The daintier pieces you couldn't begin to make at home for the price, if you count your time as of any value. A teamstress, to do her best, would run your costs to double.

Now please read us aright. Not everything in the store is reduced—a million dollars' worth is offered away under value. Take the Little French Store -- we show you the newest, prettiest things just here from Paris. Not reduced-but fairly priced. January sales with us are stern facts, important occasions-not humbug or sham. Isn't it worth while to get the biggest possible share of the special values we've gathered. It pays to skimp in other directions to spend at Wanamaker's, in January.

It's a lucky grocery store that ever made a cent on sugar-competition settled sugar for the grocer. It has made nails the sugar of the hardware trade, and certain standard muslins the sugar of the dry-goods store. We buy and sell-and the dollars of profit are unseen. No single body's faultit is the gradual outgrowth of mistaken notions. Might as well try to amend the law of supply and demand.

Well. muslins are ever so much dearer-so are ready-made sheets and pillow cases, but in spite of the rise we shall charge

Dinner Dishes and Fancy China --- Reduced

Fine news from the china store. The things we tell of have been selling at the higher prices until this morning. Why reduced? Because the china chief found so many new things in Europe that to get some of all of them will leave him no room to replenish these lines. This doesn't mean that china fashions change much, but there is progress in decorative work. New patterns cost most for awhile, because it takes hundreds of dollars expenditure to bring out a new dinner set, for instance. But here is the list-DINNER SETS. $30, regularly $45 — Limoges, festoon-embossed; floral decorations; handles heavily gilt. 125 pieces.
